House of Earth by Woody Guthrie — review. If Guthrie aimed to give cosy, middle-class readers an insight into the grinding poverty of farm labourers, he chose a remarkably oblique angle. Every 20 pages or so, a vivid, documentary detail emerges — Tike papering the decrepit walls with flourpaste and old magazines,...

House of Earth by Woody Guthrie: review. House of Earth is a previously unpublished novel from 1947. Guthrie wrote it originally by hand and then typed it up while he was living near the Chisos Mountains, Texas. It drew praise from the musicologist Alan Lomax, so Guthrie mailed it to the Hollywood documentary film-maker Irving Lerner,...
